CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT AND ETHICS
Amended and Restated Effective May 16, 2019

I. OVERVIEW

This Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (“Code”) sets forth the guiding principles by which we operate our company and conduct our daily business with our stockholders, customers, suppliers and with each other. These principles apply to all of the directors, officers and employees of NL Industries, Inc. and each of NL’s subsidiaries except for subsidiaries that are subject to a separate code of business conduct (referred to herein as the “Company” or “NL”). Unless the context indicates otherwise, the term “employee” as used in this Code includes NL’s officers and directors.

All employees are required to adhere to the principles and guidelines contained in this Code in all material respects. Failure to uphold the standards of this Code will result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment, and if warranted, legal proceedings. If you have questions about the applicability of this Code, please consult your supervisor or manager or the officer in charge of your department. If you have knowledge of or suspect a situation that you believe may violate or lead to a violation of this Code, please follow the reporting guidelines described in Section III of this Code.

From time to time NL engages in transactions with affiliated companies. In addition, certain executive officers and directors of NL serve as executive officers and directors of affiliated companies. II. PRINCIPLES

Culture and Tone at the Top.

The Company seeks to make a financial profit using ethical practices in all aspects of its business. All employees are to have a high degree of integrity, honesty and ethics. Senior management’s commitment to integrity and ethical behavior is communicated by setting an appropriate tone at the top and leading through example.

Conflicts of Interest.

All employees of the Company should be careful to avoid any action or interest that conflicts with or gives the appearance of a conflict with NL’s interests. A “conflict of interest” may exist whenever an individual’s private interests interfere or conflict (or even appear to interfere or conflict) with the interests of NL. A conflict of interest may arise when an employee takes actions or has interests that may make it difficult to perform his or her work for NL objectively or effectively. Conflicts of interest also may arise when an employee or a member of his or her family receives in an improper manner personal benefits as a result of his or her position with the Company, whether from a third party or from NL.

Conflicts of interest are prohibited as a matter of NL policy. If you have a question about a potential conflict, consult your supervisor or manager or the officer in charge of your department. If you become aware of a conflict of interest, you must bring it to the attention of your supervisor or manager, the officer in charge of your department or the General Counsel.

Employees owe a duty to the Company to advance NL’s legitimate interests when the opportunity to do so arises. Employees are prohibited from (a) taking for themselves personally opportunities that properly belong to NL or are discovered through the use of corporate property, information or position; (b) using corporate property, information or position for improper personal gain; and (c) competing with the interests of NL.

It also includes information that customers, suppliers and employees have entrusted to us in confidence, including personal identifiable information. This obligation not to disclose confidential information continues even after employment ends.

Depending on your position with the Company, you may be called upon to provide necessary information to assure that the Company's public reports satisfy these requirements. The Company expects employees to take this responsibility very seriously and to provide prompt, accurate and complete answers to inquiries related to these public disclosure requirements.

Financial Statements and Other Records.

All of the Company's books, records, accounts and financial statements must be maintained in reasonable detail, must appropriately reflect the Company's transactions and must conform both to applicable legal requirements and to the Company's system of internal controls. The falsification of any of the Company's books, records, accounts or financial statements by the entry of any materially inaccurate information or the omission of any material information is prohibited.

Records should always be retained or destroyed according to the Company's record retention policies. In accordance with those policies, in the event of pending or anticipated litigation or governmental investigation, please consult the General Counsel.
